

The Greek Post Office of Thessaloniki

1912-1950

Thessaloniki is the second most important city of Greece and the capital of Macedonia. It is built in the inlet of Thermaikos gulf, in the North-Western part of the Aegean Sea. In the past, it had an incessant and agitated history. It was established by Kassandros in 315 B.C., in the beginning of the Hellenistic era. Romans, Franks and Ottomans conquered the city from time to time.

During the Turkish domination, Thessaloniki was one of the most important cities of the Ottoman Empire and the biggest harbor of the Aegean Sea. It was the main city of the Balkan Peninsula therefore it was always an important political, military and economic center. So, inevitably, there was a need for an extensive postal facility at least during the last two centuries of the Turkish domination.

On 26 October in the year 1912 the Greek army entered in Thessaloniki and emancipated it from the Turkish domination. The next day, the Greek post office started its function at the city. On August 1914, the World War I broke out. From the middle of 1915 a big multinational army, of 500.000 soldiers, comprised the "Armée d' Orient". On November 1918 the War finished. Twenty years of peace followed. On September 1939 World War II broke out. On October 1940 Greece was attacked by Italians who were warded off. A German attack followed, and on April 1941 Greece was occupied by the German forces. The preoccupation of Thessaloniki lasted until October 1944. In the end of October of the same year Greek guerillas (EAM - ELAS) entered the city and stayed for a few months. A very hard Civil War follows (1946-1949). From the end of the Civil War and onwards city enjoys a steady period of peace with significant population and economic development.

The exhibit includes in five frames the Greek Post Offices that operated in the city of Thessaloniki and its outskirts from 1912 to 1950.

- Frame 1. Central Post Office - General Services
- Frame 2. Central Post Office - General Services, Registered mail & Air mail
- Frame 3. Parcel Post Office, Poste Restante, Express mail & Avis de Reception (Declared value)
- Frame 4. Taxed mail, Money order & Branch Post Offices of Central Post Office
- Frame 5. Branch Post Offices & Censorship of Civilian correspondences

We should mention the fact that until 15th February 1923, Greece, in contrast with many other countries et the world, was still using the Julian Calendar and only after 1st March 1923 the Gregorian one. To correspond the first with the second one should add 13 days to the first one.

The Greek Post Office of Thessaloniki 1912-1950

Central Post Office - General Services

The Greek Post and Telegraph Office of Thessaloniki were originally housed within the building of the former Ottoman Post Office on Egnatia Street which was occupied by the Greek policy on the morning of 27th October 1912. The first Greek stamps arrived possibly on the 4th November and after that date the Post Office accepted items addressed to Greece and abroad. By the end of March 1913 the Post Office moved to a newly - built establishment on Alexander the Great street (known today as Katouni Street) near the coast. The new building was completed during the Ottoman Administration. After the Great Fire (Aug. 1917), which destroyed the Commercial Center of the town, the Post Office was transferred to the only saved building, on the Liberty Square. After 1930 the Post Office moved to Tsimiski Street.

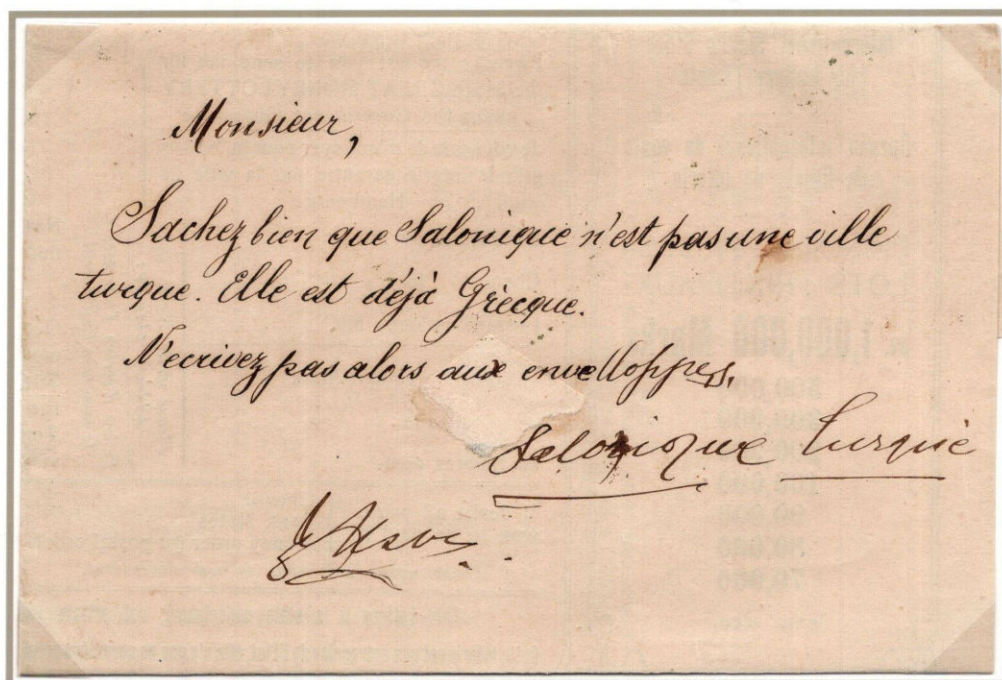

Central Post Office from 1913 to 1917,
on Alexander the Great Street.

Central Post Office from 1917 to 1930,
on Liberty Square.

On 26th October 1912 Thessaloniki was liberated from the Turkish occupation. However for quite a long time after its liberation, we come across postal items incoming from abroad upon which the senders either out of ignorance or consciously, address their letters noting "Thessaloniki Turkey" or "Thessaloniki Bulgaria". The Greek Transportation Ministry had issued an order to the Management et the Thessaloniki Post Office to return such items to their senders. The Management though, did not follow this order, and rightly suggested that the recipients of these "offender" letters should notify their respective senders to use the correct address.

Letter sent from Germany to Thessaloniki with dispatch cancellation HAMBOURG 9.12.13. The sender, a Hambourg commercial firm, addressed the letter to Saloniki Turkei. However Thessaloniki had been liberated from Turkey about a year ago. The addressee deleted the words Saloniki Turkei and returned the letter to the sender adding in the original text: "Sir, know that there is no longer a city in Turkey but in Greece. From now on please do not write on the envelope Salonique Turquie".
